

CHARLIE GOES TO THE STREET FAIR

Charlie made plans to go to the street fair. It came every year to his [sled/ lads/ town], and it was the most fun [come/ event/ year] of the summer. The best part [clean/ about/ sort] going to the street fair was [stop/ home/ that] Charlie was now allowed to go [those/ girl/ with] his friends. He used to have [dot/ to/ it] go with his mother, father, and [pies/ stem/ worst] of all, his little sister. His [risks/ roost/ sister] was a pain and she was [lawful/ always/ rather] getting Charlie into trouble.

This summer Charlie [two/ was/ box] going with Tom and Rudy to [are/ and/ the] street fair. Charlie had saved [pie/ fit/ ten] dollars to use as spending money [the/ and/ lip] he was going to meet Tom [the/ and/ are] Rudy in the morning in front [as/ it/ of] the drug store.

Charlie woke up [ray/ the/ sit] next morning and began getting ready [and/ two/ for] the outing. He put on shorts [pay/ out/ and] a sleeveless T-shirt because he [teen/ knew/ kept] it would get hot. Then he [put/ new/ lent] on a baseball cap and his [tennis/ wood/ rather] shoes. He met Tom and Rudy [of/ in/ but] front of the drug store, and [from/ storm/ paper] there they traveled down Broad Street. [Then/ Towel/ Place] they turned down Church Street and [sad/ paid/ horse] the man to let them pass through the [gates/ steam/ disks] to the street fair.

There were [people/ yellow/ sunny] everywhere and some of them were [paid/ flee/ their] friends from school. Tom said that [he/ to/ is] hoped they would see Laura, his girlfriend [call/ home/ from] school. Rudy said he was sort [is/ at/ of] looking for Sarah, and Charlie said [to/ he/ ate] was keeping an eye out for [bet/ put/ his] parents so that he could avoid [them/ laugh/ rose], if possible.

The boys went first to [run/ the/ are] stage area where they heard [the/ but/ let] bands playing, but the band that [some/ was/ say] playing, for the moment, was just [land/ too/ stew] loud. The boys decided to move [is/ be/ on] down the street to the food [seven/ area/ obey]. There were booths selling all types [it/ of/ as] food. The boys couldn't decide what [goes/ butter/ they] wanted to eat. They saw tacos, pizza, ribs, chicken, salad bars, fruit bars, spaghetti, [star/ they/ and] more. The hot dog and hamburger [wrist/ stands/ face] were on down the street, too. Charlie [witch/ wanted/ maybe] pizza and the other boys agreed, [at/ red/ so] they each bought a slice and [in/ a/ too] can of soda.

For the rest [of/ it/ by] the afternoon, they wandered up and [down/ wand/ plan] the streets looking at all the unusual [doll/ sort/ arts] and crafts that people were selling. [The/ And/ Are] street fair was exciting, and Charlie [time/ was/ two] happy that his parents had allowed [him/ slip/ lead] to come.
